

Example of a homomorphism that is not locally injective. The two neighbors of 1 are both mapped to b.

Example of a locally bijective homomorphism. The letters next to the vertices of G are not their names but rather their images under φ.